“...having a good conscience, that when they defame you as evildoers, those who revile your good conduct in Christ may be ashamed.” (1 Peter 3:16)

“It has become obvious with the malicious and outlandish attacks on Judge Roy Moore that the Left and the DC Establishment are no longer hiding their disdain for the American citizen. They will defend ‘their territory’ at all costs.”

–Dave

A couple of months ago I tweeted that the NFL, NBA, and

MLB are professional sports and that politics is a bloodsport. I cautioned the professional athletes to beware if they were going to tread into the street brawl known as politics.

The latest example of the bloodletting in politics is found in the special election for the Alabama Senate seat once occupied by now Attorney General Jeff Sessions (in hindsight it might be better that he never left his seat, but I digress).

The Washington ComPost has removed all pretense of being a serious newspaper and is now openly smearing Judge Roy Moore in an attempt to chase off Moore supporters. Except, it isn't working.

However, this doesn't mean Moore's enemies won't keep trying.

Understand that an open war for the soul of our nation is before us. Eleven years ago I wrote in my book, Understanding Evangelicals: A Guide to Jesusland:

“We are in a social civil war and we are losing because too many of us cannot ‘be found in the thickest part of the battle.’ Too often ‘when the wind blows cold’ in the form of opposition or ridicule,’ the evangelical does not take ‘the bleak side of the hill,’ but he or she runs from the hill. No more!”

The quotations are from a Charles Spurgeon quote (you'll have to read the book to see the full quote!).

If Christians are going to have any effect on society, of which it has not in the last three decades, then we must stand against such evil.

While it may seem that politics have become nastier, they have always been rough. Turn the page to learn more...

FROM THE FOUNDERS

It is not a 21st Century phenomenon that our politics have become so malicious. Our Father of the Country, the First President of the United States, lamented on the nastiness of political conversation, particularly in the media.

“I would fain hope that liberal allowances will be made for the political opinions of one another; and instead of those wounding suspicions, and irritating charges with which some of our Gazettes are so strongly impregnated, & cannot fail if persevered in, of pushing matters to extremity, & thereby tare the Machine asunder, that there might be mutual forbearances and temporising yieldings on all sides. Without these I do not see how the Reins of Government are to be managed, or how the Union of the States can be much longer preserved..” George Washington, in a letter to Alexander Hamilton, August 26, 1792.

That is a longer quote than I usually use on this page, but it is very poignant. The whole letter is worthy of your 10 minutes it would take to read. Washington wrote that he knew political opinions were unavoidable and that they might even be necessary. However, he regretted that political “subjects cannot be discussed with temper on the one hand, or decisions submitted to without having the motives which led to them, improperly implicated on the other.” It bothered Washington that men who he knew to be true patriots were resorting to the mudslinging that has become common practice in politics.

Washington feared that our form of government would not survive if the media and politicians were continually tearing each other apart.

He also did not want to believe that any “internal obstructions” would be deliberate by any party or news organization.

Mr. President, your greatest fears have come true and are running amok. Without a true national repentance, I too fear that our “Union of States can be much longer preserved.”

FROM THE PULPIT

“I was asked a moment ago to give a pastoral response to the latest public accusation brought against Roy Moore a few days prior to what may be the most important senatorial election in 50 years. Here is my response: Roy Moore is a Baptist Calvinist (I am neither). He has two options, and he already knows the answer as to which one is the case: 1) Satan is doing this to stop him, and its a carefully orchestrated sickening lie. He must not back down an inch, and accept God's grace as sufficient through the dark misery in front of him. 2) God is doing this to expose him because he did not properly repent for what he did to a girl 40 years ago, and he has lied about it.” Pastor Cary Gordon, Facebook page post, Sioux City, Iowa, November 13, 2017.

Pastor Cary Gordon, though I've never met him in person, I consider a friend and dear brother-in-Christ. Pastor Cary is the type of pastor we yearn to fill the pulpits across America (not unlike my pastor, Dr. Dennis Brunet).

I cannot with 100% certainty say that the allegations against Judge Roy Moore are untrue. No one can say with 100% certainty that another person is without the sin of which they may be accused. However, we can see the fruit of a person's life and analyze the circumstances surrounding an allegation and come up with plausible assumptions.

Pastor Cary has done that. Either Satan is attacking Judge Moore and he will have to stand the fire and rely on the grace of God. Or, Judge Moore is a liar and God is exposing him as such. I lean heavily on the former and pray mightily the latter is not true.

I seriously doubt the validity of the allegations because we've been down this road before, only to see conservatives and Christians fold like cheap suitcases in the face of adversity or ridicule. This is why I believe Judge Moore is innocent; he is standing rock solid against these scurrilous allegations and says he will file a lawsuit against the Washington Post. Can you imagine such a man in the Senate, one who will not cave to the pressures of Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell?

McConnell knows this, which is why today he said he believed the girls and that Judge Moore should resign.

You can always tell when you're scaring the DC Establishment; they begin acting like the Washington Post and Mitch McConnell.

TO THE STREETS

So how do we stop these blatant attacks by the DC Establishment and their lackeys in the press? We fight back, but not with fists or vitriol. We fight back with the truth. Of course the mainstream media will never publish the truth. However, we have plenty of alternatives to spread the truth. You're reading one of them. However, if we do want to fight the lies, then we will have to put our money where our hearts are. Here are some suggestions:

1. If you want to directly support Judge Roy Moore's campaign, you can donate at his website. Your max contribution is $2700.
2. Additionally, my PAC, Truth Watch PAC has a radio ad ready to go, one that could easily be turned into a TV ad. However, both can be quite expensive and I need your help so we can help Judge Moore. Truth Watch PAC is an independent-expenditure-only PAC (AKA Super PAC), which means we can accept unlimited contributions, including from corporations and labor organizations. Please donate today and encourage all your friends, relatives, associates, and neighbors to support us.
3. Whether you donate or not, please visit our PAC website and read up on our big initiative, "Take the Pledge," that will directly impact the 2018 midterm primaries.
4. If you haven't already, please visit my podcast webpage, where you can subscribe to our podcast, Truth Watch Radio. These podcast are 15-minute power-packed broadcasts that look at our culture, politics, and religion through a biblical lens. Also, be sure to rate us and leave a comment at the iTunes page.
5. Last, and definitely not least, please help spread the word about The Truth Watch. The more subscribers we get, the more impact we will have. Encourage your friends, relatives, associates, and neighbors to join The Truth Watch today.

As outlandish and unbelievable are the attacks on Judge Roy Moore, be there no doubt in your mind that this is just the beginning. The DC Establishment is livid with President Donald Trump and more so, with those who voted for him and still support him. They will stop at nothing to defend their turf. We must take back right ground if we are to save our Republic.
